FELLOWS' ORIGINAL
WORM LOZENGES.

WE can with confidence point to FELLOWS' WORM LOZENGES as the most perfect remedy for those troublesome pests,

INTESTINAL WORMS.

After years of careful experiment, success has crowned our efforts, and we now offer to the world a confection without a single fault, being safe, convenient, effectual and pleasant. No injurious result can occur, let them be used in whatever quantity. Not a particle of calomel enters their composition. They may be used without further preparation, and at any time. Children will eagerly devour all you give them, and ask for more. They never fail in expelling Worms from their dwelling-place, and they will always strengthen the weak and emaciated, even when he is not afflicted with worms.

Various remedies have, from time to time, been recommended, such as calomel, oil of wormseed, turpentine, &c., producing dangerous and sometimes fatal consequences. After much research, study and experiments, embracing several years, the proprietors of FELLOWS' WORM LOZENGES have succeeded in producing this remedy, free from all objections, and positively safe, pleasant and effectual. They do not kill the worms, but act by making their dwelling-place disagreeable to them. In order to assure consumers of the genuineness of these Lozenges the analysis of DR. A. A. HAYES, State Assayer, is annexed:—

"I have analyzed the WORM LOZENGES prepared by Messrs. FELLOWS & CO., and find that they are free from mercury and other metallic or mineral matter. These Lozenges are skilfully compounded, pleasant to the taste, safe, yet sure and effectual in their action. Respectfully, A. A. HAYES, M. D. Assayer to the State of Mass."

Price 25 cents per Box; Five for $1.

American & Foreign Patents.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837.
No. 78 State Street, (opposite Kilby street,) Boston.

AFTER an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms, with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications SIXTEEN APPEALS; every one of which was decided in his favor by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHAS. MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they can not employ a man more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART"

NATIONAL BANK FAILURES.

First National Bank of Attica, N. Y. Failed.
Merchants' Nat'l Bank, Washington, D. C. Failed.
National Union Bank of Rochester, N. Y. Closing.
Venango National Bank, Franklin, Pa. Failed.

COUNTERFEIT—FIRST NATIONAL BANK NOTES.

20s, a close imitation of the genuine notes, and well calculated to deceive. The back of the bill is rather coarse. The plate is said to be altered to any of the National Banks.

HIGHLAND NATIONAL BANK OF NEWBURG, N. Y.

10s, imitation—figure of liberty on an eagle on right end, Franklin and boy on left. The signatures are engraved in the counterfeit, and in the genuine they are written. The lightning, grasped by the hand of Liberty, is barely perceptible in the genuine, while in the counterfeit it is broadly defined. a dark, coarse back-ground, which in the genuine is light. On the back of the note the following DeSoto appears as if engaged in a terrible battle, and appear mixed up, while in the fore ground, the which is designed for a priest, bears the exact image of a monkey.

UNITED STATES COMPOUND INTEREST NOTES.

50s, imitation; vig. (on left end) female one holding sword in left hand, her right hand resting on Bible—male bust, 50 on die above on right end. Well done and likely to deceive good judges.

100s, counterfeits are in circulation. A facsimile of the genuine bill, but the engraving is not so fine. They are dated May 15th, 1865; Letter B. The green ink in the back of the counterfeit is paler than that in the genuine. Be careful and examine well all before taking them, as they have deceived some of our best judges.

UNITED STATES LEGAL TENDER NOTES.

10s, imitation—the portrait of Lincoln on the left is very dark, and the eyes poor, while the face of the female on the right end can scarcely be seen. On the genuine they are very distinct. Look out for them.

10s, imitations—poorly done; engraving coarse and the bills look blurred. The green ink used is lighter than the genuine. The dies and 2s are one-eighth of an inch larger than the genuine.

100s, imitated. Upper left, spread eagle sitting on a rock. The general appearance of the bill is good. The wings of the eagle are coarse and clouding streaky. The imprint of the American Bank Note Company at the top is larger than on the genuine. On the right end of the back of the bill 100 in the circles are inverted thus "001." In the genuine the 100 in the circles on the left end, read thus: "001;" in the counterfeit they are thus: "100." The paper is also heavier.

NATIONAL BANKS.

1s, altered to 10s—vig. of 1s, two female figures with hands clasped, one pointing upwards, having figure of Franklin drawing electricity from the clouds: and on the back of the bill is DeSoto discovering the Mississippi. On back of 1s, is Landing of the Pilgrims. Well done.

50s, altered from 5s; the 5s have vig. on each end—and landing of Columbus on back. Look out for this alteration.

THE FLOODS IN TENNESSEE AND WEST VIRGINIA. A dispatch from Knoxville, Tennessee gives the following particulars of the flood which visited that State and the western portion of Virginia, last week—the most disastrous in its results ever experienced in those regions:

Seven days' incessant raining swelled the mountain streams until the valley became one vast river bed. The Holstein river, from its head waters in West Virginia to the mouth, was higher than ever before known; at some points it was over fifty feet deep.—The damage to East Tennessee alone will reach $2,000,000. Twenty-three houses were washed away along the river bank at this point. The Gasper & Davis sash and blind factory lost their building, all their material, machinery, &c. John Coker, lumberman, lost some 300,000 feet of lumber. The county bridge, built by Gen. Burnside during the siege of Knoxville, was washed away. The bridges, over First Creek, connecting East and West Knoxville, were all impassable.—The gas works were all submerged. Over one hundred persons were washed out of their houses.

The towns along the Holstein and Tennessee rivers all suffered, severely. Dandridge, Lenoirs, Loudon and Kingston were all partly submerged. Whole houses were swept down the river, filled with household food and supplies. The farmers living near the French, Broad and Holstein rivers lost everything they had. Houses, barns and fences were washed away, and the stock all drowned. Great number of wealthy farmers are left with nothing but their bare lands, with crops all washed out or thickly covered with sediment. One farmer living on an island in the French Broad had his houses and barns washed away, his corn and cribs swept off, and all his stock, save two horses, drowned. He carried his family off in a boat, and they are left perfectly destitute.—Mr. Meredith, living on the Holstein, near Bristol, lost a flour mill and a foundry, his house and all his stock; loss over $10,000. Vast quantities of corn had been gathered and stored on the river banks, waiting for high water. All this corn, thousands of bushels, on the Clynch Holstein and French Broad rivers, was swept away. Mr. Fain lost 7000 bushels in one lot. It is estimated that over 100,000 bushels of corn were lost in this way. Thousands of bushels are now covering the bottoms, buried in the mud.—The railroads all lost heavily. The East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad lost three spans of the new bridge at Strawberry Plains; loss $15,000. The same road lost the bridge over Flat Creek; loss about $10,000. The Knoxville and Kingston Railroad had a heavy slide at Copper Ridge.—The East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad lost bridges near Chattanooga. The water in the rivers was twelve feet higher than in the flood of 1847. This flood extended all through West Virginia and Tennessee, and was the most damaging ever known. The streams are still high, and hundreds of families are camping on the hill sides. Great suffering must follow, as large families are left without houses or supplies. Chattanooga was all submerged; the water reached the second story of the business houses; loss immense.

WASHINGTON, March 16.

The Senate made but little progress today with the supplemental reconstruction bill, although nearly three hours and a half were spent upon the measure. Mr. Drake's amendment proposed yesterday, requiring the new constitutions to provide for voting by ballot, was rejected after brief debate, this morning, by more than two to one. The rest of the day was given to the consideration of Mr. Fessenden's amendment, which provided, in effect, that the registration of voters shall take place first under the orders of the military commanders, and that the people of the State shall then decide by voting whether they will or not hold a convention for the purpose of reconstructing, under the congressional plan, and, if they decide in the affirmative, the convention shall be called and the other proceedings had in accordance with the provisions of Mr. Trumbull's bill. The debate was earnest, but it took a very wide range. Messrs. Fessenden, Trumbull, Wilson, Howard, Stewart, Johnson, Morton, Henderson, Nye, Frelinghuysen and others took part therein. The amendment was voted down by a heavy majority, the Senate still manifesting a disposition to stand by the bill as it came from the committee. The debate will certainly occupy another day. The Senate voted early this afternoon to hold a session this evening, so as to finish the bill, but rescinded the order afterwards, when it found the House had adjourned over to Monday

WASHINGTON, March 15.

General Butler has received from Paris a magnificent bronze medal, which is a fac simile of the gold medal presented to Mrs. Lincoln by 40,000 French citizens in honor of the martyr President, and as a testimonial of sympathy with the American people in their bereavement.

The committee of the subscribers accompany the medal sent to General Butler with a complimentary letter expressing their respectful appreciation of his services in the cause of freedom.

Items in General.

Eliza Ammon, a young woman residing in Hoboken, N. J., was arrested and held for trial on Wednesday for shooting and killing a girl four and a half years old named Sarah J. Kennedy. It appeared on examination that a loaded gun was standing in the apartment where the child and its mother sat, and that Miss Ammen took it up, pointed it at the little girl, saying "I will shoot you," and fired it off—the charge lodging in the child's forehead. The mother knew the gun was loaded, but it was fired before she could say so to Ammon, who will no doubt be punished as all such reckless persons deserve to be.

The death on the 11th inst. of Rev. Abel Allton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in East Wareham and Marion, the New Bedford Standard says, is supposed to have been caused by hydrophobia For about a week from the first attack he was moderately sick, and it was thought that he was suffering from partial paralysis of the muscles of the face, but the affection toward the last rapidly grew worse, and for a few hours before his death the paroxysms were extremely violent. He was bitten in the face by a dog about twenty years ago.

The product of wool in Australia is very large, and hitherto all of it exported has been sent to England. The Australian merchants, however, intend to try an experiment, and are about to send a ship load of wool to New York, to see if a market for their staple can be opened in the United States. They probably, however, had not taken the new wool tariff into consideration when they so determined.

The telegraph along the Norwegian coast has been recently employed for the purpose of giving the fishermen notice of the appearance and position of the shoals of herrings which are found on that shore.

It is stated that the Falls of Niagara, on the American side, have gone back about one hundred and fifty feet within two weeks, in consequence of the fall of huge masses of rock.

There are many people who do not seem to understand what has been often stated, that wood ashes when exposed for some time to the atmosphere, undergo a chemical change which renders them liable to become ignited and to burn throughout the mass, when hot ashes are added to them. Many fires have been kindled in this way and the blame charged upon some unknown incendiary. Ashes, cold or hot, should never be kept in wooden vessels.

The St. Paul (Minnesota) Press says the prohibitory liquor bill, after having been amended so as to make its operations subject to the approval of a majority of the State of the township elections, was yesterday slain in the house of its friends, and consigned to the tomb of the Capulets, by the decisive vote of 25 nays to 19 ayes.

A French widow lady was travelling on the Paris-Lyons Mediterranean railway, when a coal blew into the window and set fire to the car. To save herself from burning Madame threw herself from the train, breaking her arm and dislocating her shoulder and wrist. On a suit for damages the railway company were compelled to pay the lady twenty thousand francs and her doctor's bills.

It is estimated that the late flood has damaged East Tennessee over $2,000,000. Over two hundred persons were washed out of their homes in Knoxville. The damage to farming interests is very heavy. Many of the farmers lost their houses, barns, grain and stock.

The foreshadowings of the coming fashion for bonnets from the other side of the water indicates an increase of size, verging on the extreme, and the revival of the short-waisted, long-skirted style of dress, prevalent in '37.

Recent investigations show that more than one-half of all the young persons in Lowell, under fifteen, if not under twenty years of age, are of foreign parentage.

It is said that there will be a radical candidate for the mayorality of Fredericksburg, and that every effort will be made to concentrate the negro vote upon him.

The State of Illinois has now a law authorizing the jury which convicts a culprit of felonious homicide to decide whether the penalty shall be death, imprisonment for life, or imprisonment for a term of years.

Judge Robertson of Louisiana has recently made an elaborate report upon the resources of that State. Its most interesting feature is the expressed conviction that Louisiana is peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of wheat, which he urges upon the attention of planters. Southern flour is greatly superior to that of the West, and can be sent to market so much earlier that it will be easy to secure a monopoly for it.

The common school fund of Indiana is greater than that of any other State, amounting now to seven millions, and the school system of the State is rapidly becoming one of the best. The Legislature has lately made a grant of $87,000 to the State University at Bloomingdale, which is the crowning feature of the system.

The Lynchburg (Va.) Republican says that "tobacco continues to bring almost fabulous prices. Shipping tobacco that sold for seven and nine dollars a week ago now brings twelve to fifteen dollars. Other grades sell equally well."

It is stated that private information had been received to the effect that Sir Frederic Bruce had advised the British Government to allow no more news of the Fenian rising to be forwarded over the cable.

The Sun says that Depew's late census of the city of New York would have been just as valuable if a few small boys had been employed to fill up the census blanks with random figures.

Our Foreign Correspondence.

BOLOGNA, Jan. 4, 1867.

Mr. Editor:

We crossed the Adriatic from Trieste to Venice by moonlight, and found the water absolutely still. During the five days which we spent about this sea, we did not see a wave upon its waters, for this is the quiet season of the year. Our hotel at Venice commanded an extensive view over these still waters, and over the palaces and churches of this ancient city. The air was clear and warm, and we sat at our open windows and looked out at the Sunday amusements of the Venitians. A mob with a barrel organ, and a boy with a dog and monkey, stopped in front of our hotel. A ring was formed, and the monkey began to ride the dog, and the barrel organ called in the crowd from a distance. After the boy, dog, and monkey had shown all the tricks they knew, the man with the organ passed round the hat with his left hand and continued to grind music with his right; and having collected all the small coins he could the boy took the monkey under his arm and they started away over a bridge to try the same thing on the next wharf.

Near by a juggler had his table, and was amusing an audience of a little higher order, composed largely of soldiers. Beyond, a small gymnastic company were exhibiting their feats in "ground and lofty tumbling." Most of these people had been to church in the morning.

The next Tuesday being Christmas, we attended High Mass of the church of Saint Marks. The Cardinal, the Archbishop, the Bishop, and a host of priests, were arrayed in gorgeous robes. Several hundred candles were burning. The worship of the true God was no doubt intended, but something very much like worship of the Cardinal was most apparent. I do not know but the Catholics may be as good Christians as the Protestants, but their worship certainly consists largely of showy forms and ceremonies, entirely unlike anything described in the New Testament.

It was pleasant, in the fine weather, to sit in a gondola and be rowed along the Grand Canal, past the splendid palaces, built a thousand years ago when the merchants of Venice were princes. They are now dark and smoky with that thousand years of rust and decay. Their occupants now have small incomes with which to keep them in repair. Many of them are for sale, with no buyers. Their rooms are spacious and full of paintings and statues; but copper to an American is idea of comfort.

The winged lion and the bronze horses of Saint Marks are interesting as the historical emblems of Venitian greatness. Lord Byron standing on the Bridge of Sighs exclaims: "A thousand years their cloudy wings expand around me!"

Cloudy indeed are the wings of those thousand years to most American travellers. In Great Britain the American feels at home. The monuments to her great men, her historical paintings and battlefields, the homes of her poets, novelists and historians, he can appreciate as well as an Englishman. But in Germany and Italy it is very different.—Even the well read American has only a general knowledge of German and Italian history.

The railroad from Venice to Milan runs through a very fertile plain, generally within sight of the Alps, and passing through the famous old cities of Padua, Vicenza, Verona, Brescia and Bergamo, each having often had in the middle ages a separate government, and carrying on wars on its own account.—Several of them are situated at the foot of the mountains, and have their country seats extending up their sides.

On this rich soil and in this climate, the barbarians of the North, having overrun the old Roman Empire took up their permanent abode, and gradually adopted the religion and the civilization of the people they had conquered.

We stopped at Verona particularly to see its Amphitheatre, erected in the first century of the Christian era, and now in the most perfect preservation of any in Italy. The arena in which the wild beasts, or the gladiators fought, is in the form of an ellipse, the longer diameter being 252 feet, and the shorter 147. Around this 43 marble seats, each 16 inches high and 22 inches wide, rise one above another, in similar concentric ellipses, the outside one being about 65 feet above the arena. These seats are now in good preservation, and the place is used for a trotting park, for a circus, and on public occasions. The King Victor Emanuel, was received there on his recent triumphal entry into Verona.

The tomb of the Scaligers, the family which reigned for several centuries at Verona, are interesting from their singularity.—On a large open lot in the middle of the city, surrounded by an iron fence, they erected two light and graceful buildings, standing one on six, and the other on four columns; and in those, high up in the open air their dead repose in marble coffins. Statues of members of the family fill many niches. The ladder, the family emblem, is freely used as an ornament on the fences and on the monuments. The palace of the Capulets is still shown, with its family arms over the gateway, but it is now used for only common purposes. The tomb of Juliet is now empty; it was once used as a swash-trough.

The Adige which runs through Verona, and all the large and small streams which run from the Alps across the track of our road to Milan, are confined within their banks by high artificial banks of earth or masonry.

All the mountain streams of Switzerland, Tyrol and Northern Italy have to be governed, or they would bury deep with rocks and gravel much valuable land, besides disturbing the crops and the buildings. In many cases the stream has got over its artificial barriers and done great damage. In all these countries the banks of the streams are a public care, and have to be watched as the dikes are in Holland. The public benefactors to whom monuments are erected, the office men who have distinguished themselves in these works.

The railroad cars of Europe are uncomfortable for winter, and too exclusive in their arrangements to suit an American at any time. As contrary to Sinbad Into choose which hold little social intercourse with each other, they disagreeably cut up each of our long trains into six compartments, to hold about eight persons each. Each compartment is covered by a roof, and has a door on each side, which is locked when the train is in motion. These doors make the cars rather dark. They are common in some other Italian states, and in Berne the capital of Switzerland, and are occasionally seen in some German cities. There are a few of them at Paris made high and wide, and very handsome, and the buildings of which they form a part are exempted from taxation.

"When a new occupant comes into the Executive Chair there is always an interest among the people to learn how he fills it, and whether he comes up to the expectations of those whose suffrages elevated him to the position. When called to the duties of Governor of Maine, Gen. Chamberlain was without experience in civil positions and personally unacquainted with the large majority of those who have had more to do with political affairs for the last ten or fifteen years. As a compliment and a successful College Professor, and a brave and brilliant officer in the war against the rebellion, it was thought by many that he might not be equal to the varied and responsible duties of the Executive. The commencement of the administration of a new Governor is generally the severest test of his capacity and fitness for the place. We but repeat the expressed opinions of those who have observed his course and been brought in contact with him since he came into office, in declaring that he has fully realized the hopes of his friends and put at rest the doubts of those who feared he might not prove equal to the responsibilities of the position. The members of the Legislature and the large number of persons from different sections of the State having business at the State House during the past week, have been strongly impressed with the simple dignity with which he has borne himself. He has shown that the readiness with which he passed from literary pursuits to succeed Governor Cony in the duties and cares of the tenter field, afforded true index of the strong common sense and real strength of character which he has brought to the performance of the civil labors to which he has been called. It is gratifying to perceive the unmistakable indications that the popular instinct which nominated and elected him with such enthusiasm was correct in its choice. His firmness of purpose, purity of private life, and sound principles bearing, united to his earnest sympathy with progressive ideas, cannot fail to render him one of the best Executives that Maine has ever had."

The address to the Kentucky conservatives is quite severe upon the "so called Democratic party of Kentucky, which base by its nominations, whatever may be the character of the platform promulgated, given on the practical and conclusive proof that the basis of the organization is hostility to the Union, and has thus evinced an unwavering purpose to vindicate and consecrate the principles which led to the late most causeless rebellion."

BANGOR, March 16, 1867.

To the Editor of the Daily Whig:

Will you please call the attention of persons liable to the tax under the Internal Revenue law to Nos. 1 and 6, that they may comply with the law and avoid penalties.

All acts in relation to the assessment return, collection, and payment of the income tax, special tax, and other annual taxes now by law required to be performed in the month of May, shall hereafter be performed in the corresponding days in the month of March in each year; all acts required to be performed in the month of June, in relation to the collector's return and payment of said taxes shall hereafter be performed on the corresponding days of the month of April of each year.

That section seventy three be amended by striking out all after the enacting clause, and inserting in lieu thereof the following:—"And any person who shall exercise or carry on any trade, business, or pro ession, or do any act hereinafter mentioned, for the exercising, carrying on, or doing of which a special tax is imposed by law, without payment thereof, as in that behalf required, shall, for every such offence, besides being liable to the payment of the tax be subject to a fine or penalty of not less than ten nor more than five hundred dollars. And if such person shall be a manufacturer of tobacco, snuff, or cigars, or a wholesale or retail dealer in liquor, he shall be further liable to imprisonment for a term not less than sixty days and not exceeding two years.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPMASTERS. We call the attention of our exchanges in the lower Provinces to the act of Congress of Feb. 18, 1867, by which the act of March 2, 1799 is repealed, and those who have obtained their seamen's protections under that act will be required to obtain new ones. Also, that the act of July 28, 1866, has been amended so that seamen shipping in a foreign port, and discharged there, are not entitled to the extra allowance of two months' pay, unless the master or consignee of the vessel shall refuse or neglect to pay the same. The amendment is important, as in that behalf required, shall, for every such offence, besides being liable to the payment of the tax be subject to a fine or penalty of not less than ten nor more than five hundred dollars. And if such person shall be a manufacturer of tobacco, snuff, or cigars, or a wholesale or retail dealer in liquor, he shall be further liable to imprisonment for a term not less than sixty days and not exceeding two years.

THE MOST POPULAR

COOKING STOVE

IN NEW ENGLAND.

The Model Cook for Wood or Coal.

THIS STOVE has now been before the public for a few years, and thoroughly tested in all respects, and to say that no stove yet made has given such satisfaction in every way within the bounds of truth, while it is no disparagement to other Stoves.

THE THE MODEL COOK will do more work with a given amount of fuel than any other Stove made, is a fixed fact.

THE MODEL COOK will do more work for the reason that it has full one-third more oven room than any other stove. It is more economical for the reason that the fire is made between the ovens. No heat is lost.

A more peculiar feature of the Model Cook is the addition of a Ventilating Roasting Oven so arranged that it can be used separately for roasting, or in connection with the large oven for baking. By this process roasting and baking are entirely separated.

This permanent extension of oven is additional boiler hole and other room on the top of the stove, while at the same time it leaves the same size of oven and floor room as other large stoves.

In fact THE MODEL COOKS are acknowledged by all who have used them to be

THE MOST PERFECT,
THE MOST ECONOMICAL,
AND THE MOST DURABLE,
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL,

AND THE

Most Durable Stove in the World!

THE MODEL COOKS are manufactured at the rate of 8000 per year, and the demand for them is constantly increasing.

EVERY MODEL COOK sold, is warranted to give entire satisfaction in all respects, or the stove will be taken back and the full purchase money paid.

The stove is so extensively in use in New England, or could I say any other, and gives the best satisfaction. We are the exclusive agents for the Stove in Bangor, and will be pleased to show to any who will call. WOOD BROS. & CO.

TO MILL OWNERS.

Hoisting & Canting Machine,

FOR HOISTING LUMBER:

Upon Gang Edger Tables.

BY this machine lumber is hoisted on the Tables, to be edged, the operator standing Gang Sawyer, by motion of steam power, saving all the hard lifting labor of slabbing, known as arduous in saw mills.

Two men will edge from 1 to 3 thousand feet more lumber in a day with, than can be done by hand, on a table of the same length.

Whether sawing large or small lumber, it is the largest as well as the small feed machine than can be done by hand, on a table of the same length, that handle one inch boards. In fact this machine hoists the heaviest lumber with ease and rapidity that is ever ripped at a gang, from one to six inches.

A greater labor-saving machine was never invented in a country, the time saved being computed in dollars and cents.

Every one who runs his mouse gang edger, would be back again 25 cents per day, and in one season, on account of saving in lumber. These machines are in successful operation and constant use for years.

Hearing in the report of the Committee of Virginia Legislature, recently in Washington, and to yesterday to the Senate.

Representative, acting under a resolution passed by the House of Representatives at Washington, as to whether action proposed to be called by the Legislature of Virginia would be in such a mode of holding the election, under the act passed March 2, 1867, another report that they returned to Washington, were politely and courteously by the authorities, and informed members of Congress in relation to amendments to the Constitution before Congress, being a favorable bill on the act aforesaid, changing the mode, and if adopted thereby refer its terms and reorder the reconciliatory.

Committee entertain the opinion that action bill passed by the General Assembly of Virginia so far as in conformity and not in conflict with the act of March 2, would be recognized by the authorities as tending to produce harmony, but cannot as are further satisfied from interview with the authorities at Washington, and demonstration made by the Senators of Virginia in favor of former institutions as required by law prompt action would enhance the disparity of prevailing opinion and changing the tone of sentiment towards the people of the State, and the board expressed was that we should more comply with the conditions imposed than by stopping the rights in the Union with representatives in Congress.'

St. Petersburg, March 14—Evening.—The ports in the Baltic are closed by the ice.

London, March 14—Evening.—It is stated that the European powers have failed to agree on the Eastern question. Russia demands additional concessions for the Christian subjects of the Sultan.

Despatches from Constantinople state that the Turkish government is determined to continue the war in Candia, and is preparing to send ten fresh battalions of troops to that island, under the command of Hassim Pasha.

Liverpool, March 13.—The American Chamber of Commerce in this city gave a grand banquet to-night in honor of the return of the Atlantic cable, in which five gold medals were presented to Cyrus W. Field, Captain Anderson, Mr. Canning and Mr. Willoughby Smith.

The entertainment was a splendid affair. Mr. Adams, the American minister, and all the leading American merchants of this city were present. William Rathbone presided. The usual loyal toasts were given and the health of the President of the United States drunk.

Mr. Adams, in reply to a highly complimentary toast, disclaimed all personal credit for the maintenance of peace between England and America, saying that his course and bain dictated by the American government. He thought that the magnitude of the relations between the two countries was the best guarantee of peace. To telegraph, he hoped, would strengthen that guarantee, and might ultimately supersede diplomacy and merge the world into one nation and one language.

Mr. Rathbone, the chairman, proposed the health of Mr. Field and his associates. He awarded the highest credit to Mr. Field as the projector of the great undertaking, and also for his perseverance.

Mr. Field returned thanks for the honor extended him, and said he would be ever grateful for the valuable encouragement he had received. He contrasted the present success of the cable with the severe disappointment the work had met with in the past. He did it strike to all engaged in the enterprise, from the government down to the sailors and workmen. He said the existing cables were perfect in construction and could do twice the amount of work which was now offered. He therefore hoped the tariff on messages would soon be reduced, so that both lines might be kept constantly in operation. He was in favor of allowing the transmission of political intelligence to the public, but shadows of the past at rates which would enable them to put this full newsof the world every day. He promised that the working facilities of the cables would be improved and extended in America, and explained on the future benefits to be derived when these improvements have been completed. He concluded by hoping that the Atlantic cable would be the means of cementing the friendship of the two nations, that words of enmity might never pass between mother and child, and that their only rivalry would be in extending the blessings of liberty in either hemisphere.

Mr. Field's speech was received with the most enthusiastic applause.

Capt Sir James Anderson made a speech in the course of which he declared that had it not been for the exertions of Mr. Field, the cable could never have been laid.

A speech was also made by Mr Willoughby Smith. Mr. Canning was absent.

News comes from all sources that the condition of affairs in Spain is quite as bad as it is possible for it to be without open revolution. According to the Independence Belge, a perfect reign of terror exists in Madrid:

"The slightest political offences are made punishable with death, and this punishment is not simply threatened, but executions are the order of the day. The prisons are glutted with captives, the most odious denunciations inspired by party hatred or private malice are received by the government with willing ears, and yet in spite of this compression, while recalls the worst days of the darkest epochs of 1823, which fearful revolts at the end of the reign of Ferdinand VII. broke out, the government, upon whose head all the responsibility of these publications' amongst the soldiers on guard at the Ministry of the Interior was seized, and, when a summary conviction, was sent away and shot."

It has already been seen that journalists are encouraged to be put to death for writing articles of a political nature.

Mr. Howard moved to amend by striking out the words "and if the Commissioners shall be determined by Congress to be in conformity with the provisions of the act to which this is supplementary" and insert in lieu thereof "that if said Constitution shall be approved by Congress."

Mr Trumbull said the bill had been amended since it was reported, to embody this provision.

Mr Howard withdrew his amendment. He then moved for adjourned, which motion was rejected by the following vote:

Mr Howard moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill for the admission of Nebraska into the Union.

Mr Sherman moved to amend by substituting a new bill for the reconstruction bill, which, after debate, was rejected.

Mr Howard moved to amend by striking out the enacting clause of the bill, and inserting a new bill for the admission of Nebraska into the Union.

Mr Howard, at 4.50 p. m., moved to adjourn. Negatived.

Fortieth Congress.

FIRST SESSION.

WASHINGTON, March 16.

Senate.

Mr Sherman, from the Finance Committee, reported the current resolution that the joint committee on Retrenchment are instructed to make a careful examination into the Printing Bureau of the Treasury Department, and that the committee have power to send for persons and papers, and report at the next session.

Mr Sherman said the Treasury Department desired the investigation, so as to set at rest the false reports circulated for speculative purposes, regarding the fraudulent issue of bonds.

The resolution was passed.

Mr Chandler, from the Committee on Commerce, reported the bill to allow abatement in duties on damaged goods. The bill went over until Monday.

Mr Williams called up the House Joint Resolution in regard to coin and bullion taken from the Richmond banks. After debate the resolution passed.

At 1.30 p. m. the Supplementary Reconstruction Bill was taken up, and is now being discussed.

Mr Howe moved to amend by striking out the words "and if the said Commissioners shall be determined by Congress to be in conformity with the provisions of the act to which this is supplementary" and insert in lieu thereof "that if said Constitution shall be approved by Congress."

Mr Trumbull said the bill had been amended since it was reported, to embody this provision.

Mr Howe withdrew his amendment. He then moved for adjourned, which motion was rejected by the following vote:

Mr Howard moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill for the admission of Nebraska into the Union.

Mr Sherman moved to amend by substituting a new bill for the reconstruction bill, which, after debate, was rejected.

Mr Howard moved to amend by striking out the enacting clause of the bill, and inserting a new bill for the admission of Nebraska into the Union.

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

THE WEATHER for the past few days has been remarkably pleasant for the season.—Sleighing in the city is rather poor, but a few miles out it is very fair, and there is every indication that it will continue for a week or two longer. Saturday morning the thermometer stood at zero, making an unpleasant sensation in the neighborhood of horse cars and cows, not unlike the middle of March. The mildday sun is gradually wearing away the ice, but it shows no indications of giving away at present. Yesterday there was a slight fall of snow, which will somewhat improve the sleighing.

—Hon. John H Rice returned from Washington Saturday evening. We understand that he will assume the duties of Collector of the Port of Bangor on the first day of April. He will bring to his new office the same faithfulness and fidelity which has characterized his six years of Congressional labors, and will undoubtedly prove a popular and acceptable Collector.

—Rev. W. O Holway, formerly of this city, has accepted a clerkship at Washington, secured for him by our Representative, Mr. Peters —Rev. S. P. Fay of this city will deliver an address to the temperance Cadets of Waterville on Wednesday of this week.

—The dwelling house of Wm. Johnson of Brewer caught fire on Saturday, probably from a defect in the chimney. The fire was extinguished with little damage.

—De La Rue's Minstrels are coming in a few days, and will give several concerts in Norombega Hall.

THEATRE. The latest New York sensation, "Griffith Gaunt," which has been so extensively read, and so severely criticised, has been put in dramatic form, and will be played for the first time in Bangor this evening. The play is said to be full of interest, and to contain many effective scenes. It is very strongly cast, and affords an excellent opportunity for a display of the dramatic qualities of the very superior company. We refer our readers to the daily programmes, and to the opinions of the press.

—The Republican says the logging teams on the Machias rivers are coming out of the woods, and notwithstanding the few have done well, the last three weeks of good hauling have favored operations, the crews and teams have, on the whole, experienced one of the worst winters for lumber operations ever known, in consequence of which, no more than one-half of the usual quantity of logs have been landed on the ice. A small stock of logs for the coming season will be the result. We must not be surprised to see prices for lumber rule higher than would otherwise be the case.

SUDDEN DEATH. We are pained to learn that Mr. Eben Lincoln, one of the most respectable and highly esteemed citizens of Bath, died on Friday very suddenly, in the cars of the K. & P. R. R., upon their arrival at Yarmouth Junction Mr. Lincoln has been in feeble health for more than a year; and went to New Orleans with his son last fall, for the purpose of recruiting his health. He arrived in Boston Wednesday evening on the steamer from New Orleans, in very poor health, where he was joined by his son. He expired a few minutes before the arrival of the train at Yarmouth.

—Mr. Silas P. Somes of Saco had his pocket picked Thursday even ng in a Charlestown horse car as it neared Scollay's building, in Boston, and was the loser by the operation to the sum of $500 in U. S. coupon notes, Compound Interest notes, Treasury notes, besides other notes and valuable papers. A portion of the notes Mr. Somes had taken to Boston for other parties for the purpose of selling.

—Robbers entered the store of Eben Corey in Portland, opened the safe, appropriated a $100 bond and $50 in cash, and then decamped, after locking the safe and putting a piece of lead in the key hole.

—The business of liquor selling has been abandoned in the town of Pembroke. Several other places in the State would be greatly benefitted by a similar result.

—The steamer Bello Brown, Capt Michener, is to run between Calais and Eastport the present season.

—The Wm. Waterville Levee in aid of a Soldiers' Monument netted $700.

—A religious revival has commenced at Machiasport.

—The Machiasriver is clear of ice.

The Editor of the Gardiner Journal has evidently been on a visit, and judging from the following notice of the town of Cornish, we conclude he was hospitably entertained:

CORNISH. This is a small town situated on the Maine Central Rail road, about twelve miles from Bangor. There is quite a pretty little village, with many handsome and comfortable houses, a meeting house, large school house, (better than any we have in Gardiner,) several stores, and a mill, near the depot.

The town is divided by two streams; the Kenduskeag, which empties at Bangor, and the Sowadabscook, which empties at Hampden. At one place these streams are no more than half a mile apart, and indeed, when the water is high it runs from one into the other. There are several mills in the town. At "Damascus," Going Hathorn, Esq., has a steam mill, mostly employed in manufacturing lemon boxes, which are shipped up the straits." He makes 100 000 boxes per year. Then comes Baggles' saw mill, in which is a gang of saws. Here is Grahams' mill, devoted also to manufacturing lemon boxes. He turns out about 400,000 per year. There is also a grist mill, and a carding and cloth dressing mill. Baggles & Tracy also have a saw mill just below the village. There are two sawmills on Higgles' Brook, owned respectively by Mr. Higgles and Mr. Mayo. Mr. Whitney and Mr. Fulton each have a saw mill on the Kenduskeag. Probably more than $50,000 worth of lumber was shipped from this town last year over the railroad to Bangor. Mr. Fulton also used to have a shingle mill here some ten years ago, but took the machinery out, as he thought there was not going to run it. Last year he put in another machine, and this year he has sawed 70,000 shingles, and there is lumber enough round it for as many more, showing how increased price has developed supplies of lumber which were supposed to be exhausted.

As in all places near large manufacturing centres, the farms have been neglected in this town; and the owners have been content to cut off the timber and to leave the land unfilled, also the expense of land worked of everything but stumps. Were there less trees as many farmers as now in Cornish each farm would be worth more than now.

Cornish is the home of Hon. Hiram Roggles, well known in our State as an honorable member of the Governor's Council for several years. He has been in the Councils of our last three Governors, notwithstanding he has opposed the nomination of all of them; and they have all, as presumed, found in him a friendly and able counsellor. He administers much to the prosperity of the town, as he has a large interest in the mill and carding trade.

Our friend J. D. Warren also carries on Cornish as a [illegible] and [illegible] with [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The Dying Soldier's Request.

On the dreaded field of battle,
Lay a soldier, young and brave:
Comrades dear were gathered round him,
Vainly trying life to save.
'Comrades,' said he, 'I am dying,
And when dead I fain would be
Laid beside my gentle mother,
Underneath the willow tree.

CHORUS.

Comrades dear, your friend is dying,
And when dead I fain would be
Laid beside my gentle mother,
Underneath the willow tree.

'Years ago I lost my mother,
She was all the world to me.
Near her grave I placed a willow,
A tall, waving willow tree:
Comrades, now that I am dying,
Grant, I pray this boon to me,
Bear me to the lonely church-yard,
Place me 'neath that willow-tree.

CHORUS.

'Tell my sisters and my brothers
That when dying I was blest,
Jesus softly whispered to me,
'Come and I will give thee rest,'
Place the starry flag above me,
Let it float above my head:
Farewell, comrades, don't forget me;
Then the soldier boy was dead.

CHORUS.

And from suffering, pain and anguish,
He is now for ever free,
And he sleeps beside his mother,
Underneath the willow tree.

The Uncle's Return.

An elderly man, shabbily attired, was seen stalking through one of the fashionable streets in a large city one cold December morning, supported by a large staff which he grasped firmly in one hand, while from his other swung a bundle wrapped in a coarse cotton handkerchief. His coat was of coarse gray, and had evidently seen hard service, though still perfectly whole and neat. The traveller walked slowly along, as I have said, examining carefully as he passed the names on the door-plates. He finally paused before a dwelling of showy exterior, which if we may credit the testimony of the plate upon the door, was occupied by Alexander Beaumont.

'Alexander Beaumont! yes, that's the house,' murmured the traveller to himself, as he ascended the steps and rang the door bell.

His summons was answered by a servant who, after a moment's scrutiny, which apparently was not of a very favorable character, said roughly:

'Well, sir, what do you want?'

'Is Mr. Beaumont at home?' said the old man, without heeding the infectional rudeness.

'No, sir, he is not.'

'Then perhaps I can see his wife.'

'I think it very doubtful, but I will see,' and the servant, withdrew without inviting the old man to enter, though the day was cold and his clothing seemed hardly sufficient to protect him from its inclemency.

Mrs. Beaumont was reclining on a fauteuil in a room handsomely furnished. The last new magazine was in her hand, and her eye was listlessly glancing over its pages. She was interrupted in her read ng by the entrance of the servant.

'Well, what now, Betty?' she inquired.

'There's a man down staire wants to see you, ma'am.'

'A man—a gentleman, you mean?'

'No ma'am,' said Betty, stoutly, for she well understood what made up a gentleman in the conventional sense of the term; it isn't a gentleman at all, for he's got on an old gray coat and he doesn't wear any gloves.'

'What can he want of me?'

'I don't know, I'm sure; he inquired after Mr. Beaumont first.'

'You didn't bring him in the par or, did you?'

The girl shook her head.

'You did right, and you had better tell him I'm not at home.'

'Mrs. Beaumont is not at home,' said Betty re-appearing at the door.

'I suppose that means that she is engaged,' said the old man 'but I think she will see me when she learns who I am. Tell her that I am her husband's uncle, and my name is Henry Beaumont.'

'That old rag-tag master's uncle' said Betty wonderingly, as she re-ascended the stairs.

'Ma'am, he says he is Mr. Beaumont's uncle and he wants to see you.

'Good heavens!' said her mistress; 'if it isn't that old vagrant, that strayed off years ago nobody knows where. I did hope he would never come back again.—And now I suppose he is as poor as a rat, and wants help. Well, he won't get it if I can prevent it. I suppose I must see him.'

The lady descended, fully prepared to give the visitor a frigid reception.

'I am not mistaken,' said the old man, with feeling. 'This is my nephew Alexander's wife.'

'You are right, sir. I am the wife of Mr. Alexander Beaumont; and I suppose from your language, you are—'

'His Uncle Henry. Ah me! I have been gone many, many years, and it does me good to return once more among my kindred.'

The old man leaned upon his staff, and his features worked convulsively as thoughts of the past came over his mind. Mrs. Beaumont stood holding the door as if waiting for him to depart. She did not give him any invitation to enter.

'Is your husband well?' inquired the visitor, looking wistfully in, as he expected an invitation to enter, and refresh himself after a walk by an interval of rest.'

'He is. If you have any message for him you can leave it with me, and I will deliver it,' said Mrs. Beaumont, desirous of ridding herself of the intruder as speedily as possible.

'You may tell him I have called,' said the visitor, in a disappointed tone, 'and that I would like to have seen him.'

'I will tell him;' and Mrs. Beaumont was about to close the door.

'Hold! there is one question more,—what became of Alexander's sister Anna?'

'She! I don't know much about her,' was the rather disdainful reply; but I believe she married a clerk, mechanic, or some such person. His name is Lowe, and he lives in Norton street. Is that all?'

'That is all!' and the old man turned, his steps towards the street indicated, with many forebodings lest his second visit might be as unwelcome as the first appeared to be.

'Betty' said Mrs. Beaumont, as she closed the door, 'if that old fool comes again, be sure and tell him I'm not at home.'

Norton street was not a fashionable street, nor was the two story dwelling occupied by William Lowe either handsome or costly. It was marked however, by an air of neatness which indicated that its tenants were not regardless of outward appearances.

We will take the liberty to introduce you into the little sitting room where Mrs. Lowe and her three children are even now seated. A plain serviceable carpet covered the floor, and the remainder of the furniture, though of a kind which would hardly be selected for a drawing-room, had a comfortable, home-like appearance, which amply satisfied the desires of those who derived their happiness from a higher and less mutable source than outside show.

All at once a knock was heard at the door.

'Emma,' said her mother, 'you may go to the door and see who it is, and invite them in, for it is a cold day.'

Emma obeyed her mother's direction.

'Is Mrs. Lowe at home?' inquired Henry Beaumont—for it was he.

'Yes, sir,' said Emma; 'please come in, and you shall see her.'

She ushered the old man into the comfortable sitting room.

Mrs. Lowe rose to receive him.

'I believe,' said he, 'I am not mistaken in thinking that your name before marriage was Emma Beaumont.'

'You are right sir, that was my name.'

'And you have no recollection of an uncle who wandered away from home and friends, and from whom no tidings have come for many a long year?'

A slight cloud came over Mrs. Lowe's face.

'Yes,' says she, 'he does live in the city; yet strange as it may appear, I seldom or never see him. He has succeeded well, and is wealthy; but ever since he married with a wife of a small property and great pride, he has kept aloof from us. I do not so much blame him as his wife, who is said to have great influence over him. I have called once, but she treated me so coldly that I have not felt the disposition to renew my visit.'

'I can easily believe it,' was the reply, 'for I too have been repulsed.'

'You repulsed! did you give your name, and inform her of your relationship to her husband?'

'I did; but she did not invite me to enter; and as she was evidently impatient for me to be gone, I took the hint, and here I am.'

'At least, uncle,' said Mrs. Lowe, smiling, 'you fear no repulse here.'

'Of that I am quite sure,' said the old gentleman, looking affectionately in the face of his niece. 'But you have not told me of your husband. Let me hear now whether you have made a good match,' he added pleasantly.

'That depends upon what is meant by the term. If it implies a rich husband, then I have failed, most certainly, for William's salary is only eight hundred dollars a year, and that is what we have to depend upon. But for all that I care not, for a kind and affectionate husband is of far more worth than a magnificent dwelling and costly furniture.'

'You are right,' said her uncle, warmly: 'and I infer that your husband is of such a character.'

'He is, in truth.'

'Still,' continued her uncle, 'there must be some things which your limited income will not permit you to obtain, but which would be desirable, are there not?'

'Yes, said Mrs. Lowe. 'I am anxious to give Emma and Mary a musical education; but William's means will not allow of such a piece of extravagance as the purchase of a piano, so that is one of the things which we must be content to deny ourselves.'

Mr. Lowe here entered; and, being informed of the character of his visitor, extended to him a warm welcome. A comfortable repast was soon spread, of which Mr. Beaumont partook heartily. His spirits rose and he seemed to grow younger, as he saw the cheerful faces around him, and felt himself more at home. Soon after the evening meal he rose to depart.

'Surely you are not going,' said his niece. 'You must henceforth take up your abode with us.'

'We will see about that, and if you don't think you will get tired of me, perhaps I will come. But I have hired a lodging and must undoubtedly remain in it for a few days.'

'But you must call in every day and make yourself perfectly at home, even before you come here to stay,' persisted the wife.

'Be assured of that.'

In accordance with his promise, Mr. Beaumont made his appearance the next day at about eleven o'clock, and was received as cordially as before. He had scarcely been in the house a quarter of an hour when a loud rap was heard at the door. Mrs. Lowe answered it. She beheld two men who had driven up in a wagon.

'Where is this piano to be put, ma'am?' they inquired.

'Piano! you have made a mistake. We have not purchased the piano.'

'Isn't your name Mrs. Lowe?

'Yes.'

'Then it's all right. Jim bear a hand, for it is confounded heavy.'

'But I am sure there must be some mistake,' persisted the perplexed Mrs. Lowe.

'Not at all,' said a voice behind her.

She turned round in amazement.

'You know,' continued her uncle, 'that I am going to come to live with you, and I thought I would pay my board in advance, that is all. As you expressed a wish yesterday for a piano, I bought that it would be as acceptable a way of doing it as any.'

'You, uncle? Why—excuse me—but I thought from—from—'

'You mean,' said he smiling, 'that you thought from my appearance that I could not afford it. And I confess,' said he casting a glance at himself in the glass, 'that my dress is not the extreme of fashion, and in fact I was obliged to look sour some time when I called at the second-hand clothing house the other day before I could find these. However, as I have got all the service that I wish out of them, I shall throw them aside to-morrow, and appear rather more respectably clad.

'What! are you wealthy, uncle?'

'Depend upon it, Anna, I didn't spend ten years in the East Indies for nothing,' was the reply. 'I had a mind, however, to put on the appearance of a poor man, and so test the affection and disinterestedness of my relations. One of them, however, he added, significantly, 'I found not at home;' I am happy to find myself at home with the other.'

Let us return to the aristocratic Mrs. Beaumont, who a few mornings succeeding the events here recorded, was in her drawing-room, receiving morning calls.

'By the way,' said a fashionable visitor 'I am to have your relatives, the Lowes, for a next door neighbors.'

'Next door neighbors!' exclaimed Mrs. Beaumont, in amazement. 'What do you mean?'

'Is it possible that you have not heard of their good fortune? Mrs. Lowe's uncle has just returned from the East Indies with an immense fortune. He has taken for her a house in the same block with ours, and when they have moved into it, will take up his residence with them. Meanwhile he is stopping at the R——— House.'

'What, Henry Beaumont!'

'The same; but I thought you knew it.'

When the visitor with drew, Mrs. Beaumont ordered a carriage and immediately drove to the hotel where her husband's uncle was stopping. She sent up her card, and requested an audience.

The servant soon returned with another card, "Not at home."

AN OLD STORY BY LOUIS XVIII. The exiled monarch for some time resided at Pikenborg, in Brunswick, and here learned of the death of his faithful friend and ally, Catherine II of Russia. In connection with that event Louis XVIII relates the following marvellous story. 'In the middle of the night the ladies in waiting at the Empress's bed chamber, behold their mistress come forth with a lighted candle in her hand and enter the adjoining throne-room. Surprised at this unusual incident, and at the length of time that elapsed before her majesty's return, they began to experience uneasiness. But their apprehensions were changed into feelings of the most indescribable astonishment when, upon a seldom, they heard the summons of the imperial bell; and entering Cather ine's sleeping chamber, found her in bed, and were called by her in a peevish manner, the cause of her being disturbed at that hour. It was found impossible to withhold from her the knowledge of what had passed; upon which her curiosity was so piqued, that she rose, and followed' by her attendants, proceeded at once to the throne-room. Upon its doors being thrown open a greenish light seemed to illuminate the immensity of the apartment, and a figure of Catherine herself appeared seated on the throne. The Empress uttered a loud shriek, fainted away, and the vision disappeared. From that moment the health of the Empress ceased, and two days afterwards she was cut off by a sudden fit of apoplexy. So many witnessed this extraordinary scene, that it could not be kept; and I was one of the first to hear it

An Effectual Worm Medicine

BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS,

Or Worm Lozenges. Most sickness, undoubtedly, with children and adults, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. The "VERMIFUGE COMFITS," although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child.—This valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be safe and sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children.

CHILDREN HAVING WORMS require immediate attention, as neglect of the trouble often causes prolonged sickness.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS IN CHILDREN are often over looked. Worms in the stomach and bowels cause irritation, which can be removed only by the use of a sure remedy. The combination of ingredients used in making Brown's "Vermifuge Comfits" is such as to give the best possible effect with safety.
